

Short summary of my CV:

Amy Skinner is from Cambridge, UK but has been living and working in Slovenia for the last five years. She recently completed her Masters in Development Education at the Institute of Education in London and carried out her research for her thesis in two secondary schools in Slovenia. She also holds an undergraduate degree in International Relations and Development Studies from the University of Sussex. Amy has been working in the field of global education and human rights education for the past 3 years. She has delivered human rights workshops in schools throughout Slovenia for Amnesty International and coordinated a curriculum review project which explored representations of Africa in geography and history textbooks from a global education perspective. She is currently working as Research Officer within the framework of CONCORD (European Confederation of Development NGOs) on a project which aims to strengthen the role of development education in promoting active global citizenship amongst European citizens.
